GLENDO STATE PARK

Glendo State Park is located in the eastern plains of Wyoming on the I-25 corridor between Casper and Cheyenne. The park features a 12,000 surface-acre reservoir created by the Glendo Dam and 10,000 acres of land surrounding the reservoir. The park is located on federal land controlled by the US Bureau of Reclamation.

The Glendo Dam was constructed between 1954 and 1958 and is an earth-filled structure 2,096ft in length. The main purposes of the reservoir include flood control, sediment control, irrigation, and power production. Glendo became a state park in 1959 and is home to excellent year-round recreational opportunities. Recreational facilities are managed by Wyoming State Parks, Historic Sites, and Trails.

Glendo State Park attracts fisherman, boaters, campers, hikers, mountain bikers, and outdoor enthusiasts from across the country. The park has seven day use shelters available to rent, many restrooms located throughout the park, and a series of playgrounds located in the Two Moon Campground. There are no shower houses located in the park.

HIKING & BIKING

There are over 45 miles of non-motorized trails great for hiking and mountain biking. The trails are a natural terrain, single-track design. Trail difficulties range from beginner to difficult, so there are opportunities for all experience levels. Four main trailheads are available to jump onto the trail system: Two Moon Trailhead, Wetlands Trailhead, Dam Overlook Trailhead, and Sandy Beach Trailhead. There is also pump tracks available for mountain bikers at the Two Moon Trailhead.

CAMPING

Camping is available year-round at Glendo State Park with over 500 campsites for both RVs and tents spanning across 19 campgrounds. Regular campsites are made to accommodate up to one camping unit while group campsites are made to accommodate up to three camping units.

Reservations are required for most campsites during the recreation season of May 1st through September 31st. Electrical hookups are available at select campsites for an additional fee. There is a free two-lane dump station with potable water across from Park Headquarters.

Glendo State Park has three yurts available to rent in the Two Moon Campground. Yurts are large, circular tents that surround a permanent frame on top of a permanent base. The yurts are equipped with electricity, air conditioning/heat, a set of full bunk beds, one twin bed, one twin rollaway bed, a skylight with a ceiling fan, and a table that has seating for six. There are also three reservable wall tents in the Elkhorn Campground.

FISHING

Glendo State Park has some of the best fishing and ice fishing in the State of Wyoming. It is a prime walleye fishery and also offers fishing for perch, bass, catfish, crappie, and a few other species. All anglers are required to follow rules and regulations set forth by the Wyoming Game and Fish Department and Wyoming State Parks.

BOATING

Water sports are popular among visitors with the wide-open reservoir landscape. Glendo State Park has six boat ramps: Elkhorn, Bennett Hill, Reno Cove, Whiskey Gulch, Marina, and Indian Point. However, water levels of the Glendo Reservoir fluctuate greatly throughout the year. Water rights were laid out by the Bureau of Reclamation in plans dating back to the 1930's. These agreements cause water to be released from the reservoir throughout the summer season which affects some boat ramps. There is a full-service Marina located in the park.

BIRDING

Glendo State Park is home to excellent birding opportunities. The park has a wide range of habitat types which span from wetland to reservoir, river to grassland, and cropland to mixed conifer forest. There are over 200 species of birds local to the Glendo, Wyoming area!

ARCHERY

There are both static and 3D archery ranges at Glendo State Park which were made possible by donations and volunteers. The static archery range has six targets ranging from 10 yards to 60 yards in length. The 3D archery range has 20 targets that simulate real bowhunting scenarios. These 3D targets range from native Wyoming animals to dinosaurs and Sasquatches! A 1.1 mile hiking trail connects the 3D targets. The ranges are free to use, but Day Use Fees apply to vehicles. Archery equipment for children and adults is available to rent for free from Park Headquarters upon request.
